PAST

Years ago Mrs. Eulalie Wagner began development of a garden area that showcased a Japanese Maple. In talking with those that knew her, we grew to understand that there was an Asian feel to the space...perhaps the beginnings of an Asian-inspired garden? As time moved on, the space remained beautiful in the spring with old growth rhododendrons blooming while the Japanese Maple maintained its place within Lakewold's collection. However, any sense of greater definition to the area had long departed with overgrowth and a battle for weed control.

Approached in 2012 by The Greater Tacoma Community Foundation, we embarked on a garden journey that would ultimately bring together two families in the spirit of horticulture and create Lakewold's newest garden room.

2012 - Area of Circle Drive that would become the Don & Mary Williams Garden Room.

PRESENT

With thanks to the Donald R. & Mary E. Williams Horticulture Fund of the Community Foundation, we began work on Lakewold's newest garden room. Our Horticulture Committee took charge of the project that began in late 2012. In honoring Mrs. Mary Williams' passion for horticulture, we discovered that she was not always inspired by landscape protocol, but found greater joy in the art of gardening. As is such, the newly created space does not maintain a definitive Asian gardening discipline, but focuses on our wonderful native plants and perennials, while drawing space concepts found in various Asian gardening styles. We are thankful to ANR Landscape Design – chosen for their design skill and to Dan Blossom Landscape Design who worked so carefully with Lakewold's gardeners to develop the hardscape of the garden room.

A true process of engagement from beginning to end, this project brought together volunteers, plant vendors, staff, and garden lovers. By design, we involved many in the development process so that the garden room would be completed in the spirit of looking to the future: to provide an inspirational experience for the next generation.

FUTURE

The Don & Mary Williams Garden Room officially opened to the public as a part of Lakewold's 25th Anniversary on May 7, 2014. We invite you to visit this space often and enjoy the following improvements and subtle alterations as the years progress:

Plant labels: As funding allows, this Garden Room will be the first area of which plant labels are installed.

Plant buffer: As plants mature and we add to the fence line, our hope is that traffic noise will be buffered.

Plant growth: The growth of new and young plant material will enable the full vision of this space to come to fruition.
